

250 NEGRO SAILORS, NINE NAVY OFFICERS, CIVILIAN CREWS OF TWO AMMUNITION SHIPS KILLED, INJURED OR MISSING IN GIGANTIC EXPLOSION IN CALIFORNIA

Navy Ammunition Dump Shattered — 150 Civilians In Port Chicago, a Mile from Depot, Are Injured, 56 of Them Seriously — Terrific Blast Felt and Seen 50 Miles Away—1 Ship Loaded and One Being Loaded Blow Up

MARTINEZ, Cal., July 18—At least 250 Negro sailors, nine Navy officers and the civilian crews of two ammunition ships were dead, injured or missing today in the wake of a gigantic explosion which shattered the Navy ammunition dump at Port Chicago, 40 miles north-east of San Francisco.

At least 150 civilians in the town of Port Chicago, 1 mile from the depot, were injured, 56 of them seriously. The terrific explosion, felt and seen as far as 50 miles away, occurred when two ammunition ships, one of them being loaded, the other apparently already loaded, blew up.

Buildings and homes in towns within a ten mile radius of the scene of the disaster were twisted into grotesque shapes by the tremendous blast which residents of San Francisco thought was an earthquake.

At the time of the blast, which was followed ten seconds later by another terrific explosion, Negro sailors and officers were working on the dock, loading ammunition aboard the ships. Not one of these men came back from the dock which was reduced to a twisted shambles. The civilian crews on both ships likewise were "missing."

At least 150 civilians in the town of Port Chicago, one mile from the depot, were injured. Fifty injured Navy personnel were taken to an army hospital and another 50 were removed to the Mare Island Navy hospital. At 4:30 o'clock this morning, an unofficial Navy report estimated between 250 and 350 Navy personnel were missing.

Two Navy barracks, containing between 1,500 and 2,000 men were situated near the scene of the explosion. Most of the Navy's personnel casualties were believed to have been in these buildings.

The nation's worst wartime disaster struck the community with stunning suddenness and tremendous force, shortly before 11 o'clock last night sending gigantic flashes of flame into the sky and littered a one-square mile area with wreckage and rubble.

The city of San Francisco was shaken as though an earthquake struck. The concussion of the mighty blast split the air for many miles around. Residents of San Jose, 50 miles south of Port Chicago, reported feeling the blast, believing it to be an earthquake.

Sheriff James N. Long of Contra Costa County reported that 200 men were working on the docks when the first ammunition ship exploded. These 200 men and the crews of the two ammunition ships were feared to have been killed outright.

TRAVEL IN FANCY TO W. FLORIDA BEACHES

Bucks Natural Science Ass'n Shown Shell Collection By Bristolian

R. B. FARLEY SPEAKS

NEWTOWN, July 18 — Bucks County Natural Science Association travelled from Lower Bucks County to the West Florida beaches in their subject matter Saturday afternoon, at a meeting held on Newtown Friends Meeting house grounds.

Miss Elisabeth A. Woodman, of this borough, spoke on nut trees, stressing particularly the walnuts and hickories which are very closely related. She showed specimens of leaves, buds and nuts of four kinds of walnuts — black walnut, butternut, Japanese walnut and English walnut, a native of Persia, also of hickories — the shellbark, mockernut, kingnut and pignut.

Richard Blossom Farley, of Edlington, told of plant and wild life at the mouth of the Ne-shaminy. Laurel, birds foot violet, Virginia pine and red oak grow there; raccoons, deer, opossums, skunks and muskrats are found there; and bird life is abundant. Herons of different kinds — wood ducks, bitterns, horned larks, pine siskins and red-breasted nuthatches are some observed.

Along the West Florida beaches was Stanford Rynyan's topic. Mr. Rynyan lives in Bristol, and spends his winters in Florida along the gulf coast. He takes particular interest in shellfish. He stated that Florida has 3751 miles of coast line. Tarpon Springs is the home of the largest sponge market in the world, most of the fishermen are Portuguese. "Sanibel Island is the third best shelling place in the world. The shellers like to get live shells; professional shellers dredge for them in little boats." Mr. Rynyan said there was a box of colorful pebbles, one of miniatures which were of many kinds, and other boxes containing lown paw, turkey wings, an egg cockle, razor clams.

He exhibited a beautiful collection of shells which everyone enjoyed seeing. Among some of his rare shells were lemon pectens of a brilliant yellow, a golden Panama, albino fighting conch, Junonia, tusk shells, and cup and saucer shells. There was a box of colorful pebbles, one of miniatures which were of many kinds, and other boxes containing lown paw, turkey wings, an egg cockle, razor clams.

The secretary was directed to send a letter to the chairman of the playground commission asking for police or some other form of supervision.

SGT. STRAUS VISITS RUINS OF ANCIENT CITY OF HERCULEANEUM; OVERLOOKS SEA WITH MT. VESUVIUS IN THE BACKGROUND

Sgt. Paul Straus, who is now with the U. S. Army in the Italian area, writes in an interesting manner to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Straus, Mill street, telling of a sight-seeing journey recently enjoyed.

During my visit of Naples I took one of the Red Cross tours that they offer to American soldiers. Naturally it was entirely free, and a bus took us to our destination a few miles out of the city.

The town was of the ancient city of Herculeaneum, which was buried by the eruption of Vesuvius in the year 79 A. D.—the same year that Pompeii was destroyed. This city of Herculeaneum was uncovered by accident in the 1800's by a wealthy duke who had his estate on the site of the city and one day while having a well dug, the workmen struck a buried wall and below found ancient relics of that lost city.

Work of excavating has been going on, and today a part of it has been uncovered and reconstructed. According to the guide, very wealthy people lived in these villas that overlooked the Tyrrhenian sea, and had built up a remarkably cultured civilization. The surroundings even today are truly beautiful with the blue sea in the distance, the familiar Mt. Vesuvius in the background, and lovely Italian gardens built around it.

Without going into any more detail, it is needless to say that I thoroughly enjoyed this trip. However one thought struck me very vividly—here I've seen the ruins of an ancient city when all around me is the modern ruins of another great city (Naples)—and actually there is a great similarity in their appearance. Although one was made by nature, the other by man.

And I couldn't help but speculate whether some day in the future—will people come to see the destruction which was a result of World War II?

Will write more later—how is everything at home?
Yours son,
PAUL.

To Take Programs To Men Hospitalized at Byberry Institution

LANGHORNE MEETING

LANGHORNE, July 18—Mrs. Raymond Woolson, Philadelphia, representing the work for war veterans at Byberry Hospital, as supervised by Mother Moore, spoke to American Legion Auxiliary members in the Jesse W. Soby Post home last evening.

The speaker made a plea for interest in the veterans hospitalized at Byberry, telling that they have so much less to look forward to than those veterans cared for at such institutions as Coatesville Hospital, which latter type of institution is set up mainly for veteran care.

Mrs. Woolson informed that the men enjoy good shows, cards, dancing, group singing, and parties, and asked that the local post and auxiliary aid in any manner they can from time to time to put cheer into the lives of the veterans thus mentally affected, and to aid their morale. She informed also that Mother Moore and her aides have been told by hospital officials that morale of the men has been increased 100 per cent since their work has started there. Mrs. Woolson and her assistants spend each Tuesday afternoon at the hospital with the veterans, and one evening

Teel, Sgt. Calvin C. Hutchinson, who is now home on a 32-day furlough following seven months' service overseas, recalls "D" day vividly—for that was the day he had two missions over enemy territory.

The task before him as top-turret gunner of a B-17 Flying Fortress was to aid in blasting enemy coastal installations, paving the way for the invaders landing from channel craft. And it was quite a cloudy day, he recalls.

And since "D" day he has had three missions over industrial targets in occupied territory, making 30 missions in all.

GROUP WILL MEET TO PLAN FOR POST-WAR DEVELOPMENT

Representative Residents of The Bristol Area to Convene Tomorrow Ev'g

IN MUNICIPAL BLD'G

Letter of Invitation is Mailed With Signature of H. Gordon Fromm

Invitations have gone out to a group of representative individuals to attend a meeting tomorrow evening in the municipal building for the purpose of organizing a "Committee for Economic Development" in the Bristol industrial area.

The meeting will be held in the municipal building and is scheduled to convene at eight o'clock. The invitations are signed by H. Gordon Fromm, who has been requested by the Bucks County Committee for Economic Development to call a local meeting for organization in this area.

Mr. Fromm says the group selected is "an independent and a non-political one, whose aim will be to promote and encourage post-war planning." This follows up the nation-wide plan suggested for every state, county and community in the United States.

The letter of invitation mailed over Mr. Fromm's signature reads as follows:

Dear Sir:

Job number one for American Business at present is to cooperate wholeheartedly in the winning of the war. Nothing can be permitted to obstruct that end. When victory has been attained, the Number One job of business will be: to assume leadership in the battle against mass unemployment. With this end in view the Committee for Economic Development has been formed.

The Committee is an independent, non-political corporation organized by American businessmen for a single purpose. That purpose is:

Tot of 2 Years Meets Death Beneath A Truck

SOLEBURY, July 18—A two-year-old tot, George Edward Hawthorne, son of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Hawthorne, Jr., Solebury Township, met instant death beneath the wheels of a truck loaded with wheat on Friday evening. The truck backed over the infant's shoulders in a barn on the Hawthorne dairy farm, it is stated.

A five-year-old brother, John, screamed as he saw a rear wheel of the truck pass over the helpless infant's body, but it was too late. At the steering wheel of the truck was Charles Mangle, 41, a hired man, who lived on the Hawthorne farm.

According to Trooper Harris, of the Doylestown sub-station of state police, Mangle had returned from the fields with a load of wheat. He started to back the truck toward the barn door, and then got out and opened the door.

George and John were playing in the lane at the time. When Mangle got back in the truck to back in the barn, the two boys ran in the barn ahead of the truck. John crawled up on some wheat. George, it is believed, ran directly in the path of the truck and either slipped or was knocked down by the truck.

When John screamed, Mangle stopped the truck and jumped out. He saw what had happened, lifted the infant in his arms and hurried toward the house where he met the little boy's parents.

The child was rushed to New Hope, where it was impossible to find a physician, and then on to Lambertville to the office of a doctor where the child was pronounced dead upon arrival.

STICKING TO THEIR GUNS

Time off for a soldier generally is rated priceless, whether for well earned recreation or for badly needed rest. But soldiering teaches a man many values, or rather helps him to realize more clearly—in the light of duty—the values that fashion manhood's perspective. So it is not surprising, though inspiring, to learn that soldiers sometimes prefer to remain on the job because what they are doing means more to them than whatever satisfaction an exercise of their privilege of time off might unfold.

A case in point is an American anti-aircraft gun crew with the Ninth Air Force Defense Station in England. After shooting down fifteen rocket bombs in 72 hours of incessant German attack with the pilotless flying torpedoes, they refused to knock off for a rest or a pay call.

"We knew the strain would soon begin to tell, so I offered some of the boys 12-hour passes," said Sgt. John Gregory, a former Columbia University football player, "and I thought they were going to start shooting at me." It further appears that two privates were on passes at the time of the attack. When they heard the gun crew go into action, they walked and ran 12 miles back to the station. Needless to say, something more motivated them than a craving for noise and excitement.

This story may lightly be dismissed or well pondered, depending on one's attitude toward individual responsibility in helping to win the war. Indeed, there must be many persons who reflect how they themselves might have liked to be with those single-minded Americans at their post, devoted to the task of defending helpless British people from the ravaging horror weapon of a ruthless foe. Time off may be in order, but there never was a time like the present to think of duty first and of oneself only secondarily.

It is human to consider one's occupational grievances under stress, as well as to look for a measure of recreation when occasion offers, but to seek to advance selfish interests ahead of the paramount business of winning the war is wholly unconscionable. Certainly, the self-sacrifice of the American soldier under fire—typified in this story—beggars comparison with the plaint of anyone constantly on the alert lest he be giving too much of himself to the common cause.

Hitler admits unheard of strength will be necessary to defeat the Allies. At the time of going to press it had not been heard of.

This country now has enough small arms to kill everybody in the world, but if that happened there wouldn't be anybody left to pay the taxes.

It's hardly reasonable to suppose that thousands of war workers on strike in this country are suffering from invasion jitters.

It's a sorry state of affairs when a hog no longer is welcome at the stock yards.

U. S. Bombers Strike Nazi Experimental Laboratories

London—U. S. bombers struck a shattering blow at German experimental laboratories producing rocket bomb mechanisms and other special military equipment today in attacks against Peenemunde and Zinnovitz on the Baltic Sea coast.

The attack on Peenemunde, heavily blasted several months ago by RAF bombers, was the first in daylight by heavyweight craft of the American Eighth Air Force.

An official communique said that the attacks against the German air force experimental stations at Peenemunde and Zinnovitz were carried out in good weather by strong forces of Fortress.

The bombers were escorted by medium forces of fighters. Other military targets in northwest Germany also were attacked.

During the night British bombers smashed at coastal areas of France and inland targets, presumably rocket launching sites, and the blasts reverberated to the English coast.

Beginning at dawn, hundreds of Allied planes of all types went out from England or took to the skies from bases in Normandy to hammer German troop concentrations and defense positions in support of Allied ground operations in France and appeared on a scale equal to the gigantic assaults of D-Day.

is still in Austria. And perhaps I should remind you there is no safety for you—here or in the States—if you prove unfaithful. Otherwise you will go far. Men find you desirable. Even I am not insensible to your attraction. Use it. Use it on Colin Rae, or—"the shadowy smile came and went—"or is that advice unnecessary?"

Quickly she asked, "What of him?"

"He may be in our way. He—" Dove broke off. "But win his confidence." He glanced again through the window.

"You think that will be difficult?" she asked.

"Nothing will be difficult if you keep your head."

"Why should I lose it?"

He began polishing his glasses. "For the one reason that makes women the best and worst spies in the world—they possess what is popularly described as a 'heart.' A heart, meine kleine, is a dangerous luxury for those who follow our path. You are permitted one loyalty alone—the Party. And here, I am the Party." He made a quick sign toward the window. "We will talk again."

When Colin pushed open the door, he saw only a small mild-mannered man, adjusting his gold-rimmed glasses, and a girl swathed in blankets, watching him with long, green eyes.

He heard Dove say, "It's a day for coffee," and Irina murmured reply. It was as if all this were happening to someone else—or had happened long ago. Wildly impossible that he should be standing there dropping coffee into a blackened pot while through his mind swirled the memory of two arms tight about his neck and warm lips on his lips.

Through sheer will power he pulled himself back to his task, and soon the fragrance of steaming coffee filled the cabin. He carried a cup to Irina, and saw with angry wonder that even yet his hand was not quite steady.

They drank while Dove talked of trapping and of coming trouble with Tennant. Then at last he rose.

"Time to be getting over to Cross Lake." He drew on his horse-hide mittens. "Those days before impossible that he should be standing there dropping coffee into a blackened pot while through his mind swirled the memory of two arms tight about his neck and warm lips on his lips.

Through sheer will power he pulled himself back to his task, and soon the fragrance of steaming coffee filled the cabin. He carried a cup to Irina, and saw with angry wonder that even yet his hand was not quite steady.

"I may not," Colin answered quietly. "I may go out."

There was no disguising the surprise in Dove's eyes—surprise and perhaps relief. "But I thought you had decided to spend the winter here."

"In my life nothing ever seems to be decided."

The finality in Colin's tone left nothing more to be said, and with a nod and a "Thanks for the coffee," Dove closed the cabin door.

Republican Women To Launch Vigorous Campaign

Party has found itself. For the first time since 1932, the Republican Party is going to wage a campaign on principles. Principles like the stars, never change. Our founders knew this. The Declaration of Independence and the course set for the Republic prove that those men of long ago followed principles which were in fact 'the laws of nature and of nature's God.'

"The time could not be more opportune. The Republican Party has one set of ideals. It has courageous leadership. It is positive, vocal and united. And there is the quiet determination of us all that when our boys return Home from the front, they shall find the door of opportunity open and waiting."

The Council already the largest group of organized Republican women in the Nation, with more than 30,000 members in 330 State Councils, will drive toward a goal of 50,000 as an initial move to enlarge and strengthen its organization.

Similarly the State chairmen of the Council's fourteen permanent standing committees now have six regional chairmen with large advisory committees to work with them. These committees include a large professional and business women's group, and junior Republicans.

It is Mrs. Huber's plan to integrate the campaign activities of the Council with the official Republican organization for which all women's campaign work will be directed by Mrs. Edna R. Carroll, vice-chairman of the Republican State Committee.

Today's Quiet Moment

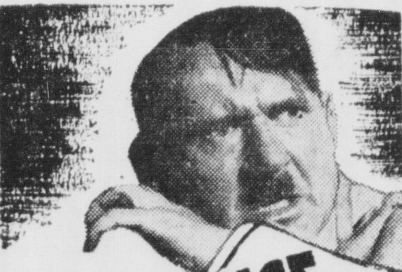

By the Rev. Arthur D. Sargis
Pastor
Eddington Presbyterian Church
Eddington

Our Father in heaven, in the midst of this upset world, with its heartaches and tragedy and tears, its injustice and warfare and persecution of racial minorities, we come to Thee. We beseech Thee for a world of righteousness in which justice and mercy and brotherhood and unselfishness may prevail. May the time come when nations shall repent and confess their sins, and ask Thee for a new day of righteousness, when peace shall cover the earth "as the waters cover the sea." We ask it all in the name of Thy dear Son, Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

FRONT LINE PATROL

Front Line Patrols operate all over the world. The attack is spear-headed . . . information is relayed . . . the battle goes on . . .

Because effective lines of communication are established.

These men need communications equipment in vast quantities—and are getting it.

They are getting it because peace-time manufacturers of telephone facilities are turning out war communications equipment almost exclusively. And, there is no let-up in the demands of war. The Army and

Navy need nearly everything we can make.

Production of telephone equipment for everyday civilian needs has all but stopped. "Margins" built into the telephone plant are just about used up.

This is why there aren't enough telephone facilities to go 'round—why the "waiting lists" for telephone service are lengthening daily.

But, there can be no "waiting lists" for our fighting men—the men who are on "Front Line Patrol."

FLEETWINGS LOSES 5 TO 1 GAME TO THE EASTERN AIRCRAFT

"Cy" Bachman Does Some Fine Relief Work On The Mound

ALLOWS FOUR HITS

One Unearned Run Scored Off Bachman in Four Innings

Despite the fine relief work of "Cy" Bachman, the Fleetwings team lost to the Eastern Aircraft nine, 5-1, last evening on the Bristol high school field. The triumph enabled the Aircrafters to maintain their lead of a few points over the fifth place Voltz-Texaco nine. Sunday night, the Eastern Aircraft nine lost to the American Steel nine which had momentarily dropped them into fifth place.

Bachman took up the hill chores in the fifth inning when Joe McDevitt appeared to be tiring. In the four and two-thirds he pitched, Bachman was touched for an unearned run and four hits. The Fleetwings team in the meantime was doing some nice fielding, executing three fast double-plays, the final one in the ninth which killed a run at the plate.

Schubilla pitched fine ball for the winners, keeping their nine hits well scattered. The only run scored off him was the result of a hit by Leone, and infield single by Ed McDevitt, and a fielder's choice by Calderone. Ludwig followed with a two-bagger but DeRisi was the third out.

Hutchinson Had Two Missions on "D" Day

Glad to be home, Hutchinson will go to Fort Meade, Md., at the conclusion of his furlough, and then expects re-assignment from Atlantic City, N. J. Whether he will remain in this country or return to foreign service he has not been informed.

Shortly before leaving England, Sgt. Hutchinson received an addition to his four oak leaf clusters to the Air Medal, the ribbon on the same now being graced by a silver cluster. Hutchinson, as announced previously, also holds the Distinguished Flying Cross.

The two "roughest" trips in his career abroad were the two times that he and the other nine of his crew returned to their base with one engine out of commission. The first time they had cloud cover, which was of great help; and the second time "we hoped for luck and it held out," comments Hutchinson. On that second occasion the craft was flown at a low altitude of necessity, but they made it back to England and safety. "None of the crew was ever injured or killed on any of the 30 missions," says Hutchinson, this being a remarkable record considering the experiences they have had. The one time that an engine was knocked "out," enemy fighters were encountered which wrought the damage. From both of those missions the fortress "Mon Tete Rouge" (My Red Head, named for the pilot's wife), had to return alone.

The localite was overseas for seven months. He is a graduate of Bristol high school, class of 1941. His wife, Dorothy, resides in Edgely; and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. David C. Hutchinson, at 621 Pine street.

a month, in addition to special programs which she arranges for various groups.

A delegation from the post was present to hear of Mrs. Woolson's work, and these members agreed to arrange for a program in the early fall with the aid of the auxiliary; with other features to follow from time to time.

The meeting was presided over by Mrs. Frank Cassidy in the absence of the president, Mrs. Harry Friedrich, who is ill. Secretary's and treasurer's reports were given by Mrs. Gilbert Bonnell and Mrs. Robert Ledom, respectively.

Mrs. Frank Buckley reported that $42 had been cleared on the bake sale held last month. It was stated that the local unit has its name on the honor roll of units supporting the clubmobiles on the battle-fronts through coupon donations.

Mrs. Lawrence Arment gave a report on the visit of the American Legion Cadet Drum and Bugle Corps, and of post and auxiliary members to Philadelphia Naval Hospital in June.

Invitation was issued to the members to volunteer assistance at the community playground which is being conducted on the grounds of Langhorne Presbyterian Church. Open dates for assistance were listed.

The state convention of the Legion and Auxiliary was announced for August 16, 17, 18, 19, at Harrisburg.

Refreshments of cookies and coffee were enjoyed.

Otto Would Rule Austria, Hungary

For inspiration he could look to the greatest of Hapsburgs, Charles V., who ruled from 1516 to 1556 over Spain, South America, Belgium, Holland, Germany, Austria, Hungary and northern Italy. Hapsburgs have been archdukes in Austria from 1286; kings of Austria and Bohemia since 1526; German emperors from 1273 to 1806 almost continuously; kings of Spain from 1516 to 1700 and kings of Hungary from 1806 to 1918.

Otto has watched events in Europe for the last 15 years with a careful eye, to see what effect each move would have on his ambitions. He saw Adolf Hitler swallow Austria, and his predictions of Austrian revolts never came true. He has seen Hungary—in theory still a monarchy with the aging Admiral Horthy as regent—become one of Adolf Hitler's satellites. His supporters believe that with Hitler's ultimate defeat, the time will be ripe for Otto to become king of either Austria or Hungary, or perhaps emperor of the two.

In 1935, Otto said: "I will not return to Austria without the full approval of all parties concerned."

The defeat of Hitler, he hopes, will bring that approval.

Now in the United States, Otto sought without success permission to organize a "Free Austria" brigade within the American army.

Should he restore the Hapsburg monarchy to Europe, Otto will bring a modern touch to the ancient throne of St. Stephen. He is a cigar smoker—when he moved to America he gave up his preferred Egyptian cigarettes for a Virginia leaf. He likes jazz music and the movies. The staid imperial castle of Schoenbrunn, on the outskirts of Vienna where the ultra-reaction-

Praul, of Badenhausen, Shared the Honors With Dewsnap

Alex Dewsnap, hard-hitting outfielder for the Voltz-Texaco team, led the batters during the first half of the Bristol Suburban League. Dewsnap stepped to the plate 33 times and delivered 20 hits for an average of .606.

Second and third places also went to Voltz-Texaco hitters with "Bill" Leigh finishing in second position with an average of .529 and Barney Lyzeak coming in third with a .488. Manager Fred Schele, of the Alcoa team, was next in line with a .450.

"Jake" Praul, of Badenhausen, shared honors with Dewsnap in run-scoring with 10 while Leigh and Freddie Hibbs were deadlocked with second honors with nine each. The unofficial averages for the leaders are as follows:

	ab	r	h	ave.
Dewsnap, V. T.	33	10	20	.606
Leigh, V. T.	25	9	13	.529
Lyzeak, V. T.	32	7	15	.488

ary Emperor Franz Joseph lived and where the great Napoleon once stayed, might well resound with the hot licks of an American jazz band.

A Hapsburg restoration would give Otto not only Schoenbrunn but also the Belvedere, a baroque castle smack in the center of Vienna; the beautiful castle of Helbrunn, near Salzburg, and the Eckart and Lackenburger palaces, 25 miles from the Austrian capital.

Group Will Meet to Plan For Post-War Development

to promote the attainment and maintenance of high levels of employment and production by private business enterprise after the war.

The work of the Committee, begun in 1942 under the leadership of some of the most prominent business and industrial leaders in our nation, has included development of a program of action to stimulate and assist the nation's businessmen to do constructive and intelligent planning for the post war period.

Obviously, such a program can only be accomplished by a grass-roots approach. Therefore, the organization of the Committee has been extended throughout the country on a regional, state, and county basis. Today, Committees for Economic Development are being formed in almost every city and community to make surveys and to map plans for post war action.

Those of us who live or work in the Bristol area believe that the post war problem of this community is certainly no less serious than that of other war industry areas and that post war planning for the area is a vital and immediate necessity.

Therefore, business and industrial leaders of the community are being requested to meet to organize a Committee for Economic Development of the Bristol Industrial Area. The organization meeting will be held at the Bristol Municipal Building, 8:00 p. m., Wednesday, July 19th. Your attendance or that of one of your executives will serve to add your support to a program that concerns every individual and, therefore, every business in the community.

Very truly yours,

This fuel enables bombers to carry heavier loads, climb and fly faster.

It is a blend of 100-octane gasoline with a concentrate called CUMENE—the T.N.T. of fuel concentrates.

The Atlantic Refining Company discovered the way to make CUMENE in combat quantities and is the world's largest producer.

250 NEGRO SAILORS, NINE NAVY OFFICERS, CIVILIAN CREWS OF TWO AMMUNITION SHIPS KILLED, INJURED OR MISSING IN GIGANTIC EXPLOSION IN CALIFORNIA

Navy Ammunition Dump Shattered — 150 Civilians In Port Chicago, a Mile from Depot, Are Injured, 56 of Them Seriously — Terrific Blast Felt and Seen 50 Miles Away—1 Ship Loaded and One Being Loaded Blow Up

MARTINEZ, Cal., July 18—At least 250 Negro sailors, nine Navy officers and the civilian crews of two ammunition ships were dead, injured or missing today in the wake of a gigantic explosion which shattered the Navy ammunition dump at Port Chicago, 40 miles northwest of San Francisco.

At least 150 civilians in the town of Port Chicago, 1 mile from the depot, were injured, 56 of them seriously.

The terrific explosion, felt and seen as far as 50 miles away, occurred when two ammunition ships, one of them being loaded, the other apparently already loaded, blew up.

Buildings and homes in towns within a ten mile radius of the scene of the disaster were twisted into grotesque shapes by the tremendous blast which residents of San Francisco thought was an earthquake.

At the time of the blast, which was followed ten seconds later by another terrific explosion, Negro sailors and officers were working on the dock, loading ammunition aboard the ships. Not one of these men came back from the dock which was reduced to a twisted shambles. The civilian crews on both ships likewise were "missing."

At least 150 civilians in the town of Port Chicago, one mile from the depot, were injured. Fifty injured Navy personnel were taken to an army hospital and another 50 were removed to the Mare Island navy hospital. At 4:30 o'clock this morning, an unofficial Navy report estimated between 250 and 350 Navy personnel were missing.

Two Navy barracks, containing between 1,500 and 2,000 men were situated near the scene of the explosion. Most of the Navy's personnel casualties were believed to have been in these buildings.

The nation's worst wartime disaster struck the community with stunning suddenness and tremendous force, shortly before 11 o'clock last night sending gigantic flashes of flame into the sky and littered a one-square mile area with wreckage and rubble.

The city of San Francisco was shaken as though an earthquake struck. The concussion of the mighty blast split the air for many miles around. Residents of San Jose, 50 miles south of Port Chicago, reported feeling the blast, believing it to be an earthquake.

Sheriff James N. Long of Contra Costa County reported that 200 men were working on the docks when the first ammunition ship exploded. Those 200 men and the crews of the two ammunition ships were feared to have been killed outright.

Byrnes Gains In The Race for Nomination

By William K. Hutchinson (I. N. S. Staff Correspondent) CHICAGO, July 18—(INS)—War Mobilization Director James F. Byrnes was gaining ground today in the wide-open race for the Democratic Vice-Presidential nomination after President Roosevelt expressed a preference for incumbent Henry A. Wallace but urged the convention to make its own choice.

Byrnes is one of the five men "acceptable" to Mr. Roosevelt as a running-mate. The others are Wallace, Senator Alben W. Barkley, of Kentucky, Circuit Judge Sherman Minton, of Indiana, and Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas, of Connecticut.

The President gently "blessed" Wallace in a letter to Senator Samuel D. Jackson, of Indiana, who will become permanent chairman of the convention. After praising Wallace's services in the government, the President said, "I personally would vote for his (Wallace's) renomination if I were a delegate to the convention." But then the President added:

"At the same time I do not wish to appear in any way as dictating to the convention. Obviously the convention must do the deciding. And it should—and I am sure it will—give great consideration to the pros and cons of its choice."

In many quarters, convention leaders asserted the letter "doomed" Wallace. At any rate, it threw the Vice-Presidential race wide open.

TRAVEL IN FANCY TO W. FLORIDA BEACHES

Bucks Natural Science Ass'n Shown Shell Collection By Bristolian

NEWTOWN, July 18—Bucks County Natural Science Association (travelled from Lower Bucks County to the West Florida beaches in their subject matter Saturday afternoon, at a meeting held on Newtown Friends Meeting house grounds.

Miss Elisabeth A. Woodman, of this borough, spoke on nut trees, stressing particularly the walnuts and hickories which are very closely related. She showed specimens of leaves, buds and nuts of four kinds of walnuts—black walnut, butternut, Japanese walnut and English walnut, a native of Persia; also of hickories—the shagbark, mockernut, kingnut and pignut.

Richard Blossom Farley, of Edlington, told of plant and wild life at the mouth of the Nechaminy-Laurel, birds foot violet, Virginia pine and red oak grow there; raccoons, deer, opossums, skunks and muskrats are found there; and bird life is abundant. Herons of different kinds—wood ducks, bitterns, horned larks, pine siskins and red-breasted nuthatches are some observed.

Along the West Florida beaches was Stanford Runyan's topic. Mr. Runyan lives in Bristol, and spends his winters in Florida along the gulf coast. He takes particular interest in shelling. He stated that Florida has 3751 miles of coast line. Tarpon Springs is the home of the largest sponge market in the world, most of the fishermen are Portuguese. "Sanibel Island is the third best shelling place in the world. The shellers like to get live shells; professional shellers dredge for them in little boats." Mr. Runyan told of having seen a run of mullet fish early one morning when a dozen or so fishing boats took in 180,000 pounds of fish.

He exhibited a beautiful collection of shells which everyone enjoyed seeing. Among some of his rare shells were lemon pectens of a brilliant yellow, a golden Panama, albino fighting conch, Junonia, tusk shells, and cup and saucer pectens, one of miniatures which were of many kinds, and other boxes containing lions paw, turkey wings, an egg cockle, razor clams.

Sgt. Paul Straus, who is now with the U. S. Army in the Italian area, writes in an interesting manner to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Straus, Mill street, telling of a sight-seeing journey recently enjoyed.

During my visit of Naples I took one of the Red Cross tours that they offer to American soldiers. Naturally it was entirely free, and a bus took us to our destination a few miles out of the city.

The town was of the ancient city of Herculeaneum, which was buried by the eruption of Vesuvius in the year 79 A. D.—the same year that Pompeii was destroyed. This city of Herculeaneum was uncovered by accident in the 1800's by a wealthy duke who had his estate on the site of the city and one day while having a well dug, the workmen struck a buried wall and below found ancient relics of that lost city.

Work of excavating has been going on, and today a part of it has been uncovered and reconstructed. According to the guide, very wealthy people lived in these villas that overlooked the Tyrrhenian sea, and had built up a remarkably cultured civilization. The surroundings even today are truly beautiful with the blue sea in the distance, the familiar Mt. Vesuvius in the background, and lovely Italian gardens built around it.

Without going into any more detail, it is needless to say that I thoroughly enjoyed this trip. However one thought struck me very vividly—here I've seen the ruins of an ancient city when all around me is the modern ruins of another great city (Naples)—and actually there is a great similarity in their appearance. Although one was made by nature, the other by man. And I couldn't help but speculate whether some day in the future—will people come to see the destruction which was a result of World War II?

Will write more later—how is everything at home?

Yours son, PAUL.

Mrs. Woolson informed that the men enjoy good shows, cards, dancing, group singing, and parties, and asked that the local post and auxiliary aid in any manner they can from time to time to put cheer into the lives of the veterans thus mentally affected, and to aid their morale. She informed also that Mother Moore and her aides have been told by hospital officials that morale of the men has been increased 100 per cent since their work has started there. Mrs. Woolson and her assistants spend each Tuesday afternoon at the hospital with the veterans, and one evening

Allies Cut Loose with Large Scale Offensives

London—Allied armies in France were reported by the Germans to have cut loose with new large-scale offensives today at both ends of the Normandy battlefield. American armored and infantry units were said by the Nazi agency DNB to be attacking in strength against the communications center of St. Lo into which advance elements penetrated yesterday. The British Second Army was said to have thrown the bulk of its forces into a furious attack against the German lines southwest of Caen. Headquarters of General Eisenhower said it had no immediate comment on the German claim of new offensive action by the Allied assault units. The offensive was launched after forward elements of Lt. Gen. Omar N. Bradley's First Army had been pushed out of the eastern limits of St. Lo proper by two German counter-attacks. DNB said the Americans before St. Lo steadily tightening a siege from the east, northwest and north, had unleashed a concentric attack against the vital communications center. The forward lunges of the Yanks were supported by waves of Allied bombing planes and heavy artillery fire, the Germans said.

GROUP WILL MEET TO PLAN FOR POST-WAR DEVELOPMENT

Representative Residents of The Bristol Area to Convene Tomorrow Ev'g

IN MUNICIPAL BLD'G

Letter of Invitation is Mailed With Signature of H. Gordon Fromm

Invitations have gone out to a group of representative individuals to attend a meeting tomorrow evening in the municipal building for the purpose of organizing a "Committee for Economic Development" in the Bristol industrial area.

The meeting will be held in the municipal building and is scheduled to convene at eight o'clock. The invitations are signed by H. Gordon Fromm, who has been requested by the Bucks County Committee for Economic Development to call a local meeting for organization in this area.

Mr. Fromm says the group selected is "an independent and a non-political one, whose aim will be to promote and encourage post-war planning." This follows up the nation-wide plan suggested for every state, county and community in the United States.

The letter of invitation mailed over Mr. Fromm's signature reads as follows:

Dear Sir: Job number one for American Business at present is to cooperate wholeheartedly in the winning of the war. Nothing can be permitted to obstruct that end. When victory has been attained, the Number One job of business will be: to assume leadership in the battle against mass unemployment. With this end in view the Committee for Economic Development has been formed.

The Committee is an independent, non-political corporation organized by American businessmen for a single purpose. That purpose is:

Tot of 2 Years Meets Death Beneath A Truck

SOLEBURY, July 18—A two-year-old tot, George Edward Hawthorne, son of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Hawthorne, Jr., Solebury Township, met instant death beneath the wheels of a truck loaded with wheat on Friday evening. The truck backed over the infant's shoulders in a barn on the Hawthornes dairy farm, it is stated.

A five-year-old brother, John, screamed as he saw a rear wheel of the truck pass over the helpless infant's body, but it was too late. At the steering wheel of the truck was Charles Mangle, II, a hired man, who lived on the Hawthornes farm.

According to Trooper Harris, of the Doylestown sub-station of state police, Mangle had returned from the fields with a load of wheat. He started to back the truck toward the barn door, and then got out and opened the door.

George and John were playing in the lane at the time. When Mangle got back in the truck to back in the barn, the two boys ran in the barn ahead of the truck. John crawled up on some wheat. George, it is believed, ran directly in the path of the truck and either slipped or was knocked down by the truck.

When John screamed, Mangle stopped the truck and jumped out. He saw what had happened, lifted the infant in his arms and hurried toward the house where he met the little boy's parents.

The child was rushed to New Hope, where it was impossible to find a physician, and then on to Lambertville to the office of a doctor where the child was pronounced dead upon arrival.

STATE BRIEFS

SOMERSET — (INS) — Walter Orris, 40, of Windber, disagreed that "there is honor among thieves" when he was released from the Somerset County Prison with a postponed sentence for forgery. He was soon reincarcerated on larceny charges—for stealing a fellow prisoner's watch.

HARRISBURG — (INS) — Upwards of 2,000 Pennsylvania servicemen are returning to civilian life monthly, according to Col. Richard K. Mellon, State Selective Service Director. He added that most of them have found suitable jobs.

NEW CASTLE — (INS) — "Labor must not take the fruits of capitalism, or refuse to let it operate," it was to build a better America, according to Delos Walker, of Chicago. Speaking before a New Castle club he declared, "If income cannot be produced then both capital and labor will have to fold up, because they are interdependent."

SCRANTON — (INS) — Pvt. John McCrone, of Scranton, voluntarily spent the first day of his first visit home on a furlough in two years in a hospital. He donated his blood for a transfusion for another man.

FRONT LINE PATROL

Front Line Patrols operate all over the world. The attack is spear-headed . . . information is relayed . . . the battle goes on . . .

Because effective lines of communication are established.

These men need communications equipment in vast quantities—and are getting it.

They are getting it because peace-time manufacturers of telephone facilities are turning out war communications equipment almost exclusively. And, there is no let-up in the demands of war. The Army and

Navy need nearly everything we can make.

Production of telephone equipment for everyday civilian needs has all but stopped. "Margins" built into the telephone plant are just about used up.

This is why there aren't enough telephone facilities to go 'round—why the "waiting lists" for telephone service are lengthening daily.

But, there can be no "waiting lists" for our fighting men—the men who are on "Front Line Patrol."

FLEETWINGS LOSES 5 TO 1 GAME TO THE EASTERN AIRCRAFT

"Cy" Bachman Does Some Fine Relief Work On The Mound

ALLOWS FOUR HITS

One Unearned Run Scored Off Bachman in Four Innings

Despite the fine relief work of "Cy" Bachman, the Fleetwings team lost to the Eastern Aircraft nine, 5-1, last evening on the Bristol high school field. The triumph enabled the Aircrafters to maintain their lead of a few points over the fifth place Voltz-Texaco nine. Sunday night, the Eastern Aircraft nine lost to the American Steel nine which had momentarily dropped them into fifth place.

Bachman took up the hill chores in the fifth inning when Joe McDevitt appeared to be tiring. In the four and two-thirds he pitched, Bachman was touched for an unearned run and four hits. The Fleetwings team in the meantime was doing some nice fielding, executing three fast double-plays, the final one in the ninth which killed a run at the plate.

Schubilla pitched fine ball for the winners, keeping their nine hits well scattered. The only run scored off him was the result of a hit by Levene, and infield single by Ed McDevitt, and a fielder's choice by Calderone. Ludwig followed with a two-bagger but DeRisi was the third out.

Glad to be home, Hutchinson will go to Fort Meade, Md., at the conclusion of his furlough, and then expects re-assignment from Atlantic City, N. J. Whether he will remain in this country or return to foreign service he has not been informed.

Shortly before leaving England, Sgt. Hutchinson received an addition to his four oak leaf clusters to the Air Medal, the ribbon on the same now being graced by a silver cluster. Hutchinson, as announced previously, also holds the Distinguished Flying Cross.

The two "roughest" trips in his career abroad were the two times that he and the other nine of his crew returned to their base with one engine out of commission. The first time they had cloud cover, which was of great help; and the second time "we hoped for luck and it held out," comments Hutchinson. On that second occasion the craft was flown at a low altitude of necessity, but they made it back to England and safety. "None of the crew was ever injured or killed on any of the 30 missions," says Hutchinson, this being a remarkable record considering the experiences they have had. The one time that an engine was knocked "out," enemy fighters were encountered which wrought the damage. From both of those missions the fortress "Mon Tete Rouge" (My Red Head, named for the pilot's wife), had to return alone.

The localite was overseas for seven months. He is a graduate of Bristol high school, class of 1941. His wife, Dorothy, resides in Edgely; and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. David C. Hutchinson, at 621 Pine street.

a month, in addition to special programs which she arranges for various groups.

A delegation from the post was present to hear of Mrs. Woolson's work, and these members agreed to arrange for a program in the early fall with the aid of the auxiliary, with other features to follow from time to time.

The meeting was presided over by Mrs. Frank Cassidy in the absence of the president, Mrs. Harry Friedrich, who is ill. Secretary's and treasurer's reports were given by Mrs. Gilbert Bonnell and Mrs. Robert Leedom, respectively. Mrs. Frank Buckley reported that $42 had been cleared on the bake sale held last month. It was stated that the local unit has its name on the honor roll of units supporting the clubmobiles on the battle-fronts through coupon donations.

Mrs. Lawrence Arment gave a report on the visit of the American Legion Cadet Drum and Bugle Corps, and of post and auxiliary members to Philadelphia Naval Hospital in June.

Invitation was issued to the members to volunteer assistance at the community playground which is being conducted on the grounds of Langhorne Presbyterian Church. Open dates for assistance were listed.

The state convention of the Legion and Auxiliary was announced for August 16, 17, 18, 19, at Harrisburg.

Refreshments of cookies and coffee were enjoyed.

For inspiration he could look to the greatest of Hapsburgs, Charles V, who ruled from 1516 to 1556 over Spain, South America, Belgium, Holland, Germany, Austria, Hungary and northern Italy. Hapsburgs have been archdukes in Austria from 1286, kings of Austria and Bohemia since 1526; German emperors from 1273 to 1806 almost continuously; kings of Spain from 1516 to 1700 and kings of Hungary from 1806 to 1918.

Otto has watched events in Europe for the last 15 years with a careful eye, to see what effect each move would have on his ambitions. He saw Adolf Hitler swallow Austria, and his predictions of Austrian revolts never came true. He has seen Hungary—in theory still a monarchy with the aging Admiral Horthy as regent—become one of Adolf Hitler's satellites. His supporters believe that with Hitler's ultimate defeat, the time will be ripe for Otto to become king of either Austria or Hungary, or perhaps emperor of the two.

In 1935, Otto said: "I will not return to Austria without the full approval of all parties concerned."

The defeat of Hitler, he hopes, will bring that approval.

Now in the United States, Otto sought without success permission to organize a "Free Austria" brigade within the American army.

Should he restore the Hapsburg monarchy to Europe, Otto will bring a modern touch to the ancient throne of St. Stephen. He is a cigar smoker—when he moved to America he gave up his preferred Egyptian cigarettes for a Virginia leaf. He likes jazz music and the movies. Group Will Meet to Plan For Post-War Development to promote the attainment and maintenance of high levels of employment and production by private business enterprise after the war.

The work of the Committee, begun in 1942 under the leadership of some of the most prominent business and industrial leaders in our nation, has included development of a program of action to stimulate and assist the nation's businessmen to do constructive and intelligent planning for the post war period.

Obviously, such a program can only be accomplished by a grass-roots approach. Therefore, the organization of the Committee has been extended throughout the country on a regional, state, and county basis. Today, Committees for Economic Development are being formed in almost every city and community to make surveys and to map plans for post war action.

Those of us who live or work in the Bristol area believe that the post war problem of this community is certainly no less serious than that of other war industry areas and that post war planning for the area is a vital and immediate necessity.

Therefore, business and industrial leaders of the community are being requested to meet to organize a Committee for Economic Development of the Bristol Industrial Area. The organization meeting will be held at the Bristol Municipal Building, 8:00 p. m., Wednesday, July 19th. Your attendance or that of one of your executives will serve to add your support to a program that concerns every individual and, therefore, every business in the community.

Very truly yours,
H. G. FROMM,
